BOUWA WHEE CATERING AWARDED
GAHCHO KUÉ CONTRACT

New 'Evergreen Contract' process launched for local business

De Beers Canada Inc., Operator of the Gahcho Kué Mine, is pleased to announce that Bouwa Whee Catering will assume the contract for catering and other key site services at Gahcho Kué as of December 9, 2016.

This is the first contract to be awarded under a new business model approach by De Beers Canada to prioritize Northwest Territories owned, managed and operated businesses to create broader benefits for all community members.

Kim Truter, Chief Executive Officer of De Beers Canada, said that as a 100% Aboriginal-owned community-based business, Bouwa Whee Catering was an ideal partner to reach out to for the new contract. "We want to continue to strengthen our partnerships with those communities that have Impact Benefit Agreements with our business, so by selecting a local community company that has invested for the long-term will provide that business and the community better long-term planning and sustainability", said Truter. "We have also engaged with our other IBA partners to identify similar 'Evergreen Contract' opportunities, which will be put in place in the coming months and years for qualified local businesses."

An 'Evergreen Contract' will remain in place for the life of the operation, provided the contract partner continues to deliver the services as required in the contract.

Det'on Cho Corporation CEO Paul Gruner said that the new 'Evergreen Contract' will allow business to look far ahead when it comes to employment opportunities, revenues and other benefits for the community. "Contracts like this with De Beers represent true partnerships and provide greater long term certainty for Bouwa Whee Catering and Det'on Cho Corporation. Mutually beneficial business partnerships have been the foundation of our success. Det'on Cho Corporation and Bouwa Whee look forward to continuing our mutually beneficial relationship with De Beers", said Gruner.
